MILL AND MINE ARE CLOSED DURING THE FUNERAL OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE EXTENSION

The Tonopah Extension mine and mill closed this morning at 7 o'clock and did not reopen until this afternoon at 3 o'clock, in memory of the late Max E. Bernheimer, president of the Extension, whose funeral was held today.

Few residents of Tonopah understand what important influence was wielded by Mr. Bernheimer in this camp, and fewer still appreciate the important part he played in the mineral development of Nevada. Coming here when a mere boy at the suggestion of Mr. Jacob Schiff, who was deeply interested in the old Morey lead and silver mine near Tulo, he became his business representative. Owing to the nature of the ore discovered when depth was attained and the difficulty of treating it with any metallurgical process then in vogue, the Morey had to close down. At that time Mr. Bernheimer made many friends in the vicinity of Hot Creek, and corresponded with certain of his early-day friends until 1907, when he again became interested in southern Nevada. Then, through the representations of Malcolm MacDonald, he renewed his acquaintance with the Nevada field and entered actively into the opening of properties and became identified with various other enterprises, and at the time of his death had many propositions in view of locating in southern Nevada, in which he expected to put considerable of his own money and the money of his friends. On account of his death these properties will remain idle for a great many years, as there are very few men with the money he had who would be willing to take the chances he had. He served in the capacity of president to several companies in southern Nevada and never received nor asked for one cent of compensation.

Mr. Bernheimer's reputation in New York was for absolute honesty and upright character, and he could raise any amount of money on any property in which he had faith. Among his local holdings may be mentioned the Tonopah Extension, Tonopah Merger, Tonopah Victor, Tonopah Mines corporation, Nevada Smelter and Mines corporation, the Nevada First National bank of Tonopah and the Railroad Valley Saline company. He was to have paid a visit to Tonopah next month, as he had expressed his desire to attend the annual meeting of the Extension directors. He leaves two sons, aged 17 and 19, and a widow, who is very wealthy in her own right.

RANCHMEN MAKE STRIKE IN WILLOW CREEK MINE

Henry Goodman came in from Willow creek last evening with a lot of the high-grade ore recently struck in the tunnel being driven by himself and associates on the Blackwell Pappas property. He had two sacks of the ore and this morning Martin Horton came in with three more sacks, all of which was taken out secretly by Goodman from a place in the tunnel workings. The ore shows large amounts of free gold and is pronounced as probably the richest in gold ever brought to Ely from any district in this part of the state. Estimates as to the value of the lot of five sacks run from a couple to many dollars a pound, as the gold appears to be all through the quartz, and not merely in the seams. From the looks of the ore and the description of its occurrence, in the ledge, as given by Mr. Goodman, it is evidently one of the biggest strikes ever made in the state.

When the claim was taken up several days ago by Blackwell and Pappas they found a place in the ledge and on the surface that contained some very rich ore. Samples assayed in Ely showed the value to be more than $1800 a ton, and when this fact became known there was much excitement and a rush to the new district. It was found that but little work had been done on the claim, but that ore like that brought to Ely was in evidence, but it appeared to be a pocket, which was soon shot out. Few of the prospectors who visited the district found anything encouraging outside of the Blackwell claim, and most of them concluded the find would never amount to much. Several blocks of the claim were taken under lease, however, one block by McGill parties and another by Ely men. After a short time the leases were consolidated and a bond taken on the property.

Some distance down the hill from the scene of the first strike a tunnel was started on the ledge, which has now been driven about 150 feet, but which has not yet reached under the point of the strike. The ledge has been continuous and wide all the distance followed and contained more or less gold. In some places the full width of the ledge was sampled and found to carry from $80 to more than $100 in gold to the ton. One place where the ledge is six feet wide a general sample taken by Henry Goodman ran $133 in gold. A few days ago Mr. Goodman started prospecting the place, with the result that he opened the high-grade streak in one of the walls. The first specimen of the ore which he found is literally plated with gold on one side and its richness startled him. He continued to investigate, and with a candlestick took out the five sacks of ore that are now in Ely.

Several of the men interested in the lease and bond will go out to the property to make an inspection of the strike and arrange for further development and production.—Ely Express.

ALIENATION IS CHARGE AGAINST MRS. MACKAY

WIFE OF MILLIONAIRE SON OF BONANZA KING IMPLICATED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Katherine Ketchum Blake has served Mrs. Clarence Mackay with notice of a suit for damages in a large amount for the alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, Dr. Joseph A. Blake, the noted surgeon.

This action followed the hasty departure of Mr. Mackay for Europe last June. He took the three children with him and they are still abroad.

Notice of the proceeding is understood to have been forced on Mrs. Mackay some weeks ago, but because of the reluctance of all parties to publicity, no papers have been filed. Dr. Blake has been separated from his wife for more than a year. He is living at his home, No. 108 East Sixty-fifth street. Mrs. Blake is living at No. 36 East Seventy-fifth street.

Attorney George Gordon Battle admitted that Mrs. Blake had talked to him regarding a separation, but that friends of the couple still believed there was a possibility of a reconciliation.

Mrs. Mackay is one of the best-known women in society. At the time of her husband's departure she was living at the country place, "Harbor Hill," near Roslyn, L. I. Some time ago she transferred title to the property to her husband. Mrs. Mackay is now in Portland, Maine, where she has taken up her residence.

Service in behalf of Mrs. Mackay in the suit has been accepted by her lawyer, Arthur C. Train. He now represents her in association with Henry W. Taft.

That the Mackays and Blakes were friends was a subject of common knowledge. There appeared to be a break in their friendship about two years ago. Shortly afterward Mrs. Blake began to live more or less independently of her husband. It was noticed, also, that Mr. and Mrs. Mackay began to make frequent trips alone. This was particularly remarked, as they had long been looked upon as being devoted to each other.

Mrs. Mackay is considered one of the most beautiful and intellectual women in the country. She has been prominent in equal suffrage and social work and is of an old Knickerbocker family, having been Miss Katherine Duer. She was married to Mr. Mackay at the home of her parents here May 18, 1898. Mr. Mackay is extremely wealthy. His father left an estate valued at $50,000,000. Mrs. Mackay is about 35 years of age and her husband is a few years her senior.

By Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—The prosecution of Bixby announced today it would make an effort to impeach the testimony of defendant yesterday, who said his only relation with the girls at the Jonquil were philanthropic. The prosecutor expects to recall Cleo Barker and other girls. Bixby's lawyers argued against this.

SULZER ASKED A WITNESS TO DENY UNDER OATH THAT HE HAD CONTRIBUTED MONEY

By Associated Press.
ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Duncan W. Peck, state superintendent of public works, testified in the impeachment trial today that Sulzer asked him to deny under oath that he had contributed $500 to the campaign fund.

Sulzer asked Henry L. Morgenthau, ambassador to Turkey, to "be easy with him" in case he were called to testify at the impeachment trial. Morgenthau, who contributed $1000 to the campaign, was recalled today. He added that the governor asked him to treat the relations between them as a "personal affair." Morgenthau told Sulzer the state of facts, and refused to consider the affair as "personal."

Many witnesses testified to contributing, most of them saying they understood it was for campaign funds. These contributions were not included in Sulzer's statement. Some of these checks identified by brokers' clerks were deposited to pay for stocks, including Sulzer's personal check for $800.

MINING PATENTS THAT CAUSE OPERATORS TROUBLE

PROCESSES THAT PERPLEX AND LEAD TO MUCH COSTLY LITIGATION.

Of the patents which cause the most trouble to operators in the metallurgical field, patents gotten out for the purposes of protecting processes are the most injurious, says the Mining World. No one has any quarrel with patentees of machines or apparatus for the carrying out of processes, or at any rate all realize that a valid patent on such apparatus is of benefit to the industry as a whole.

As showing about the maximum of ridiculous patent grants, a decision was recently rendered in the Delaware courts against the Tonopah Mining company, of Tonopah, Nev., which held that the said company, in concentrating its ores after cyaniding, was infringing a process patent granted to one Alden H. Brown in 1905. That is, that the combination of concentration and cyaniding in that order, although utilizing two well-known processes in a natural way, could not be done without coming to some agreement with some one who had been granted a patent covering that combination. Had the ore been concentrated before cyaniding, no patent would have been infringed.

The pushing of such patent rights as these does more injury to legitimate enterprises than any other one factor in metallurgy.

The patent laws should be revised in such a way as to prevent the granting of patents of this class.

The claim upheld is as follows: The heretofore described process for the treatment of ore consisting in, first, pulverizing the ore in the presence of cyanide solution; second, subjecting the ore to hydraulic classification by the introduction of cyanide solution at the bottom of an overflow tank to produce an ascending current; third, leaching the ore by use of cyanide solution, whereby the finer metal content of the ore is dissolved; fourth, removing the dissolved metal from the ore in any suitable manner; and finally subjecting the residue to concentration.

Unless there is some modification or reversal of this decision, a large majority of cyaniding plants will have to pay tribute in order to continue in business.

VOLCANO NAME OF THE LATEST SILVER CAMP

SMALL SHIPMENTS COMING IN FROM A PROPERTY THAT HAS BEEN QUIETLY DEVELOPED.

Volcano is the name of a station on the Manhattan auto road where there is more than passing promise of a mine making good. The owners are not saying anything, but they are making small shipments at intervals and they are not disposed to boast of what they are going to do. Yesterday a shipment of two tons went through by wagon to Millers, and it is understood similar lots have been sent to the sampler from Goldfield. The property is situated on a sharply rising mountain sixteen miles east of Tonopah and four miles east of the Manhattan road. The values are carried in silver. George P. Rodgers of Rodgers & Reynolds, Goldfield, and Charles Glenn are among the owners.
